Albert was learned, Albert was bright,
Albert was nearly always right.
He'd been everywhere from Denmark to Munich, he'd studied old wars both Spartan and Punic.
His knowledge of battles no one could fault.
He'd read dozens of books on the catapult.

- With his nose in a book, Alfred strode across the room.
- Staring through the telescope, the young girl had a big fright!
